COMMENT OF THE DAY

TASK AHEAD

THE Western alliance nations will rejoice in the fact that President Eisenhower's health is improving and that he will be able to attend the crucial "summit" conference in Paris starting next Monday. The President's illness was the cause for concern and there was a certain amount of despondency among the allied nations who were anxious that Mr. Eisenhower's dynamic personality would provide statesmanlike leadership to ensure the success of the meeting.

The President's presence in Paris is now even more necessary following the spate of Bulgarian letters to the heads of Western governments as they appear designed to frustrate the establishment of ballistic missile bases in Nato countries.

One motive for the despatch of the letters may be the expectation that a new move to establish missile bases for the new United States weapons on the Continent will arouse considerable opposition and thus create dissension among the partners.

Committed

BRITAIN for her part has already committed herself in principle to the reorientation of the forces in Europe and there is nothing that Marshal Bulganin can do about it.

Marshal Bulganin has tried similar tricks in the past—usually on the eve of important talks—and so far the effect has been negligible and there is little likelihood that his latest efforts will sway even the smaller powers despite the Soviet Union's superiority in the nuclear field.

But the fact remains that a leader is required if the alliance is to flourish and Mr. Eisenhower is cut for that role. That he will fulfil his role is beyond question and one can but hope that his health will not be further impaired by the task ahead.

Bulganin's Call For Big Power Conference RUSSIA'S NEW PEACE OFFENSIVE

'Arsenic, And Old Lace' Murders?

London, Dec. 11. A 66-year-old woman of private means was arrested near the City of Newcastle today and charged with the murder of her last husband, Ernest Wilson, in a case that may rival the gruesome tale of "Arsenic and Old Lace."

The woman, Mrs. Mary Wilson, is suspected of murdering four men during a two year period, including three husbands and a man for whom she worked as housekeeper. Under English law, the accused can only be tried for one crime.

Mrs. Wilson's arrest followed investigation by the police who recently exhumed the corpses of the four alleged victims and immediately charged her with murder.

SUSPICION

Suspicion was aroused by the fact that, although Mrs. Wilson was married to her first husband for 45 years, her second marriage lasted only a few weeks, and her last husband died after only 18 days of wedlock.

The first husband, John Knowles, died at the age of 70 in September 1955. John Russell, for whom she was housekeeper and alleged mistress, died in January 1956. Her second husband, a retired real estate agent, named Leonard, died early this year. She then married Wilson, a retired engineer, who died shortly after the wedding.

None of the men left more than £100 to the accused. Mrs. Wilson is alleged to have recently told one newspaper that she had needed £10 to pay her rent, which was why she had married her last husband, and told him so.—France-Press.

Clumsy Move To Create Dissension At Paris Talks

Says US Official

Washington, Dec. 11. The United States Government will not reply to the letter sent to President Eisenhower by Soviet Premier, Nikolai Bulganin, before consulting its allies at the Atlantic Pact summit conference in Paris, a highly placed authoritative source said today.

Eisenhower conferred with the Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles, for nearly two hours today on the Bulgarian letter which was delivered in Washington yesterday.

It is considered in the highest echelons of the American Government as a propaganda move designed to muddy the waters at the Nato conference which opens on Monday in Paris.

CONSULTATIONS

The letter contains no proposals which have not already been rejected by the United States and its allies, it was said here.

Informed sources said the US Government nevertheless did not wish to reply to Bulganin's letter without consulting its allies. Such consultation fell within the framework of the enlarged political talks the Allies planned to hold at the conference.

It was thought here that the letter showed that the USSR was disturbed by the forthcoming Nato talks, and wished to create dissension by a manoeuvre which American officials considered to be rather clumsy.—France-Press.

Accuses NATO Of War Preparations

London, Dec. 11. Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, the Soviet Prime Minister, told President Eisenhower in a message, broadcast by Moscow Radio tonight that Russia was ready to agree to a "personal meeting of heads of countries."

Its purpose, the message added, would be to discuss questions of interest to the two sides.

Marshal Bulganin also said that Nato states were mobilising their resources to speed up arms production and war preparations in general.

The message was handed over in Washington yesterday. Similar messages have been sent to Britain, France and West Germany.

A Summary

Moscow Radio, in a summary of the message to President Eisenhower, said attention should be called to the fact that on the initiative of the United States and Britain, measures were currently being worked out with the aim of sharply intensifying the war preparations of the North Atlantic signatories.

"All this activity is taking place in an atmosphere of an artificially built up nervousness and fear of a non-existent threat on the part of the USSR, and wide use is made of USSR's latest scientific and technical achievements."

The Radio said Marshal Bulganin pointed out that such actions by the Western Powers do not help to ease international tensions and do not answer the interests of strengthening peace.

Arms Race

Instead of seeking ways to reach agreement on disarmament, the USA is making plans to build bases for rocket weapons on the territory of the West European countries and is urging a further arms race.

Realisation of the plans for basing the Nuclear weapon in the West European countries cannot, however, strengthen the US military position but only increase the danger of war breaking out.

Marshal Bulganin called on the United States for a joint effort to end the cold war, stop the arms race and take a firm stand on the road to peaceful co-existence.

It is imperative, he said, for agreement to be reached on disarmament, and what is needed for such an agreement is to the main trust among the parties taking part in the disarmament talks.

Crucial Moment

Marshal Bulganin pointed out that a crucial moment had been reached in international relations, the Radio said.

It was such that steps taken in the immediate future, particularly by the great powers, would go a long way towards providing an answer to the main question disturbing mankind.

This was whether the trend towards a military catastrophe would continue—and at an even faster pace—or whether those responsible for national policies would take the only reasonable road of peaceful co-existence and co-operation between all countries, he said.—Reuter.

ARRESTED

Codogno, Dec. 11. The police today arrested the grade crossing attendant at Codogno, where the Milan-Rome express was wrecked last week, killing 18 and causing many injuries.

The attendant, Zefirino Gridi, was charged with negligence. His arrest was ordered by the public prosecutor in charge of investigating the accident.—France-Press.

Indonesia Welcomes Mediation Offer

Djakarta, Dec. 11. An Indonesian Government spokesman said tonight that Indonesia would welcome a US offer to mediate its bitter dispute with the Netherlands over control of Dutch New Guinea.

"If the United States offered to mediate we would be glad to accept," Foreign Office spokesman, Ganis Harsano, said in replying to a question by an American newsmann.

SIMULTANEOUS

Russian Abdulgani, Chairman of the Indonesian National Council, said tonight that all Dutch banks, estates and industrial enterprises in East Java would be taken over "systematically" by the Government.

The Indonesian Foreign Office spokesman said that Indonesia would accept an American mediation offer if the United States made simultaneous approaches to the Dutch and Indonesian Governments.

It was the first reliable indication that the Indonesian Government would be receptive to mediation attempt by a third party in its campaign to gain control of West New Guinea (West Irian) from the Dutch.—United Press.

Hunger Strike

London, Dec. 11. The London office of the Cypriot Embassy announced tonight that 20 Cypriot political prisoners at Wormwood Scrubs prison have decided to start immediately a 48-hour hunger strike.—France-Press.

Bank Rate Leakage Inquiry

LONDON TYCOON GIVES EVIDENCE AT TRIBUNAL

London, Dec. 11. Lord Kindsley, head of many big businesses, told an official tribunal today that he was able to divorce secrets he acquired as a Bank of England Director from his ordinary business judgment.

He said that "neither directly nor indirectly nor by hint" had he told anyone that Britain's Bank Rate was to be raised by two per cent to seven per cent last September 10.

The 58-year-old Baron was testifying before the tribunal which is investigating allegations that there was an advance leakage of information about the Bank Rate rise.

INFINITESIMAL

Earlier this week the Attorney-General, Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller, had called him "a connecting link" between three companies which sold blocks of Government stock in the days just preceding the Bank Rate rise.

The Tribunal Chairman, Lord Justice Parker (Sir Hubert Parker) referred to rumours that Lord Kindsley personally had made money from pre-bank rate deals and asked how the sale of gilt-edged stocks by his companies would have affected him personally Lord Kindsley replied: "To such an infinitesimal degree, Sir."

Detailing his financial interests in many concerns, he said "they would have to sell millions before they brought anything to me."

The three companies which sold gilt-edged securities are Lazard Brothers, merchant bankers, the Royal Exchange Assurance Company, and the British Match Corporation. Lord Kindsley is Chairman of Lazard's and British Match and Governor of the Royal Exchange.

He told the tribunal that the Governor of the Bank of England, Mr. Cambram Cobbold, had told him on September 10 he proposed to recommend five per cent Bank Rate rise.

At a meeting of Lazard's at which it had been decided the firm's liquidity should be improved, he said, he had fully realised this could only be done through the sale of gilt-edged holdings. But the first he knew of the actual sale was in going through documents after it had taken place. And he had not spoken of the Bank Rate to the directors who made the decision.

Smiling, Lord Kindsley told the Attorney-General: "There is nothing very much in selling £1,500,000 gilt-edged you know, Sir. All you are doing is selling to get money."

DIVORCE

He told the tribunal: "After many years I have found I can, to my satisfaction, divorce the knowledge which I know I have acquired from the Bank of England or one of the other companies, from my normal business judgment. If I happen to be placed in the unfortunate position of having to give business judgment."

He never experienced any conflict of duty.

Lord Justice Parker commented: "Forgive me for saying so, but it seems to me almost superhuman. It does produce at times some awkward situations."

Lord Kindsley: Very awkward, indeed.

Lord Justice Parker: Whether you come out of it all right

Emergency Declared In NY

New York, Dec. 11. New York's Police Department declared an emergency tonight to cope with the transport tangle caused by a subway train drivers' strike which has reduced trains to about one third of normal.

Transit Authority Policemen were placed aboard those trains still running after a lead pipe was thrown at a non-striking driver early today. The pipe shattered a glass window, missed the driver, but injured a passenger.

FOUR MILLION

More than four million people a day are carried by the subway system. The majority of these have now been forced to find alternative means of transport in and out of the city since the strike, called by the Motormen's Benevolent Association (drivers), which began early on Monday morning to back its demands that the Transit Authority should negotiate with it over conditions and wages.

The Authority refused claiming that it would deal only with the larger transport workers union.—Reuter.

Bullet Proof!

Rangoon, Dec. 12. Disgruntled followers shattered the claim of the notorious Burmese rebel leader, Bo Soe, that he was bullet proof and invulnerable by firing 28 bullets into the "bullet-proof" man.—United Press.

British Interests Unaffected

London, Dec. 11. Representatives of British interests in Indonesia said today that although the situation there was confused following the take-over of Dutch firms, it was believed the British position was unaffected and companies would be able to carry on normally.

A well-informed Anglo-Indonesian rubber source said that in certain companies Dutch staff had gone back to Holland, but in one British concern the latest information was that no Dutch employees had left.

It was believed the British position was "all right"—Reuter.

Reorganised

United Nations, Dec. 11. The Secretary of the Interior in the British Government on Cyprus said today the "Eoka" revolutionary organisation had reorganised itself since last February during the relaxation of emergency measures by the island's administration.

The Interior Secretary, K. J. Neill, made the statement during a press conference and said he did not believe the numbers of the militant terrorists in Eoka had grown. He said Eoka recruited mainly youths between the ages of 15 and 18.—France-Press.

PRINCE WAN
WON'T GIVE UP HIS EFFORTSWill Try To Carry Out UN Mandate
On Hungary Despite Rebuffs

New York, Dec. 11.

Prince Wan Waithayakon of Thailand said tonight he was not giving up efforts to carry out his United Nations mandate on Hungary despite Soviet and Hungarian rebuffs.

He told a press conference that his job as the General Assembly's special representative would continue and possibilities for progress might develop before the next Assembly session.

Referring to his report to the Assembly yesterday, in which he recorded that the Hungarians and the Russians had refused him visas to visit Budapest and Moscow, Prince Wan stressed that this was an interim document.

He noted that the resolution appointing him to the job did not specify to which session he should report back.

The current Assembly is due to wind up next Saturday. Diplomats have said they do not expect a full-scale discussion of Prince Wan's report.

Soviet View

Soviet sources said after the press conference that Prince Wan had several times been invited to visit Moscow as former president of the Assembly.

While discussion of the Hungary question officially would be excluded, it was clear that it could hardly fail to crop up in the contacts he might have there with Russian leaders, these sources said.

Thus they envisaged the possibility of some forward steps if the prince went on these terms—Reuter.

Israel Will

Prisoner

Amman, Dec. 11.

Israel will tomorrow return the Jordanian farmer taken prisoner last month, Jordanian officials said today.

The farmer, Abdul Rahman Abo Saud has been held in Israel since the Jordanians alleged he was kidnapped by an Israeli patrol operating in Jordan territory.

The Israelis have said the farmer was picked up on Israeli territory.

The Mixed Armistice Commission has investigated the incident and ordered the farmer be returned to Jordan—United Press.

Baghdad Pact
Powers May
Ask Nato Aid

Washington, Dec. 11.

The Baghdad Pact powers in a meeting at Ankara on Monday are expected to urge that the Nato nations come to their aid in the event of aggression against any of the Baghdad Pact nations, a highly placed diplomatic official said today.

He said a resolution at the Nato Council meeting in Paris, saying it would give support to the Baghdad Pact countries in the event of aggression, gave an added sense of security to them and should further help to discourage Soviet ambitions in that area.

The official believed that Premier Adnan Menderes of Turkey would be likely to bring the matter before Nato. If the Ankara conference agrees he should do so.

INTERFERENCE

He contended that such a Nato declaration could not be considered as interference in Middle East affairs, as Nato would act only after another country had committed aggression.

Other officials said that no decisions in regard to the Middle East would be made by the Nato Council meeting without prior consultation with the diplomatic representatives in Paris of the interested nations.

They said that the Nato communiqué may contain a vague reference to the necessity of raising the standard of living in Miami, Florida, Dec. 11.—The U.S. Navy rushed through an emergency investigation tonight after reports, later said false, that a ship had been torpedoed off the U.S. East Coast.

The Coastguard originally issued the report as unconfirmed.

The Navy then investigated and reported: "Nothing, not even a ship in trouble."

The Coastguard here said it had received a radio report from the U.S. South Carolina that it had intercepted an indistinct message from an unnamed ship that it had been torpedoed.

Later the Coastguard said the report was apparently based on a radio message sent by a ship engaged in a training exercise—Reuter.

London, Dec. 12.

Henry Farrie, aged 38, told his 40-year-old girl friend Tilly Farrell: "If you ever leave me, I'll have my whole face tattooed so that no other woman will ever look at me."

Then, after ten years' close friendship, they had a rift over Henry's action in walking out of a job as a bouncer in a restaurant.

Tilly told Henry to get out of her life—so Henry went straight to a London tattooist. He had a butterfly tattooed on his nose, a tree on his forehead, a flying dragon on one cheek and a coiled snake on the other.

FINAL ACT

Then he went round to see Tilly again—and she shut the door of her flat, north London, home in his face.

Tilly is quoted by the Daily Mirror today as saying: "I thought he had taken leave of his senses—no I took leave of him by closing the door."

And former seaman Henry told the newspaper: "The tattoo will last me for the rest of my life. I think I'll get a job in a circus to help me forget..."

Then he opened his shirt and showed his throat. Across it were tattooed the words: "Cut here!"—China Mail Special.

Washington, Dec. 11.

The United States Pentagon announced today that a "static" trial of the Air Force "Atlas" intercontinental ballistic missile was held earlier in the day at the Cape Canaveral launching ground.

The Pentagon spokesman refused to give any details of the trial.

"Insecurity Always Ends In Explosion Of War"

Pearson Calls For Peace Talks

Frank, Serious And Complete Exchange Of Views

Oslo, Dec. 11.

Mr Lester Pearson, former Canadian Minister for External Affairs, tonight called for a frank, serious and complete exchanges of views — especially between Moscow and Washington — through diplomatic and political channels.

Mr Pearson, who yesterday received the diploma and gold medal of the £14,400 1957 Nobel Peace Prize at a ceremony here, made the appeal in a 6,000-word lecture on "The Four Faces of Peace" in the main hall of the university.

In a section devoted to peace and policy he continued: "Essential to the success of any such exchanges is the recognition by the West that there are certain issues such as the unification of Germany and the stabilisation of the Middle East, which are not likely to be settled in any satisfactory way without the participation of the USSR."

"Where that country has a legitimate security interest in an area or problem, that must be taken into account. It is also essential that the Soviet Union in its turn, recognize the right of people to choose their own form of government without interference from outside forces or subversive domestic forces encouraged and assisted from outside."

Complexity

Mr Pearson continued: "Perhaps a diplomatic effort of this kind would not succeed. I have no illusions about its complexity or even its risks. Speaking as a North American, I must state that we should be sure that the responsibility for any such failure is not ours. The first failure would be to refuse to make an attempt."

"The time has come for us to make a move, not only from strength, but from wisdom and from confidence in ourselves, to concentrate on the possibilities of agreement, rather than on the disagreements and failures, the evils and wrongs, of the past."

"It would be folly to expect quick, easy or total solutions. It would be folly also to expect hostility and fears suddenly to vanish. But it is equal, or even greater folly to do nothing, to sit back, answer missile with missile, insult with insult, ban with ban."

"That would be the complete bankruptcy of policy and diplomacy and it would not make for peace."

Mr Pearson declared: "Our policy and diplomacy — as the two sides in the cold war face each other — is becoming as rigid and defensive as the trench warfare of 40 years ago, when two sides dug in, dug deeper, and lived in their ditches. It is essential that we avoid this kind of dangerous stalemate in international policy today. The main responsibility for this purpose rests with the two great powers, the United States and the USSR."

"What is needed is a new and vigorous determination to use every technique of discussion and negotiation that may be available. 'What I plead for is no spectacular meeting of a big two or a big three or a big four at the summit, where I've feeling is precarious and the winds blow hard, but for frank, serious and complete exchanges of views especially between Moscow and Washington through diplomatic and political channels.'"

In a section of his lecture, Mr Pearson spoke of the formation of "coalitions and associations of states," and said:

"These may be necessary in the world in which we live but they do extend the area of a possible war in the hope that greater and united power will prevent any war. 'Furthermore, the force which you and your allies collect for your own security can, in a bad international climate, increase, or even to increase, someone else's insecurity. A vicious chain reaction begins. In the past, the end result has always been not peace, but the explosion of war.'"

DOES CRIME PAY? NOT VERY MUCH THIS TIME

London, Dec. 11. A gang of thieves had little trouble last night breaking into every place they tried. But they found that crime does not pay very much.

The thieves:

● Broke into the National Provincial Bank and were able to find only US$6.00.

● Broke into a lawyer's office upstairs and found US$5.00.

● Broke into the British Legion Hall 200 yards away and found only a few biscuits.

● Stole an old car from a nearby garage and then found it was too much in need of repairs to travel very far.

● Broke into a store across the street but were unable to open the safe.

● Broke into two garages on the road to Wendover but found nothing to steal.—United Press.

Algerian Assassin Gets Life Term

Paris, Dec. 11. Mohammed Ben Sadok, 26-year-old Algerian plumber, was sentenced today to a life sentence at hard labour for the assassination of Ali Chakkal, former Vice-President of the Algerian Assembly.

The public prosecutor had demanded the death penalty for Ben Sadok for the murder last May 25, declaring that it had been an act of terrorism on behalf of the Algerian rebels.

MURDER

The court found the defendant guilty of murder and ruled that the murder had been premeditated.

It declared, however, that there had been extenuating circumstances, and that the sentence should therefore be one of life imprisonment.

Ben Sadok heard the sentence with the same calm he had shown throughout the three-day trial.—France-Press.

ARMISTICE OFFICER REPLACED

New York, Dec. 11. Lieutenant-Colonel Christiaan Moe, chairman of the Israel-Syrian Mixed Armistice Commission, who was accused by Syria on Monday of pro-Israel bias, is to be replaced, it was announced here tonight.

His successor will be Lieutenant-Colonel J.G. Bertrand, a Canadian officer, a United Nations spokesman announced.

Colonel Moe, a Norwegian, is understood to be planning to return home. His four years of duty with the United Nations Truce Supervision Organisation would have expired at the end of the year.

The changes will go into effect on December 15, the spokesman said.—Reuter.

Portuguese PM Sick

Lisbon, Dec. 11. Dr Antonio Oliveira Salazar, the Portuguese Prime Minister, will not attend the Nordic Atlantic Treaty Organisation's summit meeting in Paris next week because of poor health, it was announced here tonight.

Dr Marcelo Caetano, President of the Council, Dr Paulo Cunha, Foreign Minister and Lieutenant Colonel Fernando Dos Santos Costa, Defence Minister, will go to Paris instead of the Prime Minister.—Reuter.

Hollywood, Dec. 11. Actor Cornel Wilde has co-authored a new cocktail which he calls "The Constellation." "Four of them and you join Outer Space," he said.—United Press.

Manila's Move To Halt Economic Crisis Is Lauded

Washington, Dec. 11.

The tough measures announced by the Philippine Government to halt its dwindling dollar reserves were generally applauded today in official and financial circles here.

American officials as well as officers of the International Bank and Monetary Fund described the drastic new restrictions as evidence that President Carlos P. Garcia's government was taking a realistic view of the necessity to halt the draft toward economic chaos in the islands.

The impression gained in official American circles was that if the Philippine government followed through with long-range belt-tightening measures, it would greatly increase the possibility of a large scale US stabilization loan for the Republic.

HOW LONG?

It was not clear here, on the basis of initial Manila reports, just how long the Manila government intended to keep in effect the complete bans imposed by today's orders.

These orders suspended all bank credit, halted the importation of non-essential goods and banned the remittance of dollar profits out of the Philippines.

It was assumed that the total bans would have to be relaxed but the hope was that longer-range measures retained would be sufficiently stringent to keep the situation under control.

LOANS

The assumption here was that the strict control measures were to some extent the result of the report of Governor Miguel Cuaderno of the Philippine Central Bank when he returned to Manila after an extended stay in the U.S.

Cuaderno, who was sounding out the possibilities of official and private loans for the Philippines, found an almost unanimous opinion here that the Philippines would have to take some drastic measures of the sort announced today before its applications could be considered seriously.—United Press.

Brenda Saville Gray, 25, of Braintree, Essex, England, called Mrs Lydia Dean, 21, at the Venango County jail here where she is being held for the fatal shooting of her husband.

T/Sgt. Ronald Dean, 25, was killed by a rifle blast as he slept in his parents' home last Saturday.

In a telephone conversation with the Pittsburgh Press today, Mrs Gray said she had not made up her mind to marry Dean although she is expecting his child.

"He was trying to make arrangements for me to come to America but I was going to live with my sister in Texas," she told the Scripps-Howard newspaper.

IN TEARS

"Really, I hadn't even made up my mind whether I was going to come out there," she said.

Mrs Gray said she and Mrs Dean "only spoke a few words" on Tuesday because they were in tears during most of their six-minute conversation.

"She asked me to help her," Mrs Gray said. "But I told her I couldn't help her from here." The British girl said she learned about Dean's death in the newspaper and discovered for the first time that her American lover was married.

"SO NICE"

"I met him a year ago at a dance," she said. "He was as quiet and nice that we started going out together. He never told me he was married."

Dean met his wife in 1954 while stationed in the Pacific. He met Mrs Gray while on a tour of duty at an Air Base near Braintree, England.

Mrs Gray said she was stunned by Dean's death and has made no plan.

Mrs Dean, being held for Grand Jury action, is in a state of shock from the slaying, a physician said.

It was the second trans-oceanic telephone call of the day to Lydia. Earlier, her mother, Mrs Ugenia Clabul Dean of Manila, the Philippines, called her daughter and told her she would arrive in the United States by plane "as soon as possible."

Mrs Dean told State Police she "just went out of my mind" and shot her husband with an old 45-70 caliber rifle as he slept on a living room couch in his parents' home.—United Press.

Wife Held For Slaying: Rival Feels 'Sympathy'

Indonesia Detains 30 K.P.M. Vessels

Singapore, Dec. 11. Thirty K.P.M. Royal Dutch steamship company ships have been detained by the Indonesian Government.

The Singapore office of K.P.M. announced this today. Twenty-five of the company's vessels are lying in Singapore's "laid-up anchorage," five are at Penang, and another ten are at sea.

A company spokesman said no one knew yet what was going to happen to the detained ships.

CREWS

K.P.M. would keep clear of Indonesian waters for the immediate future, and new routes were being sought. Some K.P.M. vessels had already left Singapore with cargoes for other parts of the world.

The spokesman said the hundreds of Indonesian crew members aboard K.P.M. ships lying in Malayan waters would be paid off and repatriated, and new men would be recruited here.

The spokesman said thousands of tons of Indonesian cargo was lying in the ships in Singapore and Penang. He thought its value would run into millions of Malayan dollars.

Chinese shipowners said charter rates on the Indonesian run had risen by 10 to 15 per cent. However, they said, owners were only chartering their ships when they knew there was a reliable agent in Indonesia.

Foreign lines other than Dutch said they had no ships to operate to Indonesia at present.—Reuter.

THE US AIR FORCE PLANS ASSAULT ON SPEED RECORD

San Francisco, Dec. 11.

The Air Force today planned a new assault on the British-held world speed mark even though it failed to qualify a record-shattering performance yesterday because of malfunction of a camera.

A swept-wing F-101A Voodoo fighter-bomber, piloted by Maj. Adrin E. Drew of Bergstrom AFB, Texas, yesterday, flitted at nearly 1,200 miles an hour over a 10.1 mile straightaway course to break unofficially the 1,132 mile-an-hour world mark.

However, the failure of a camera which recorded part of the jet's smashing performance prevented official recognition of the flight by the National Aeronautics Association.

WEATHER

"Another flight will be made, possibly on Thursday or Friday — weather permitting — in an attempt to better the records."

An Air Force spokesman said. The Air Force estimated that Maj. Drew flew his powerful jet at between 1,150 and 1,190 miles an hour over the measured course as he came off 55-mile approach legs.

He kept his ship at between 36,000 and 41,000 feet and flew the course in both directions to offset winds.

L.P. Twiss set the present world speed mark in March, 1955, in the Fairly Delta — a British-built research ship. The United States record of 1,015 miles an hour was established by Navy Cmdr. R. W. Windsor at China Lake, California, on Aug. 21 of last year.

The Voodoo is powered by two Pratt and Whitney J-57 jet engines which gives it 30,000 pounds of thrust. It is designed to deliver atomic weapons at extreme range.—United Press.

I predict . . . Eisenhower will

resign within 12 months

THE past few days have shaken the New World and also inspired it.

When President Eisenhower suffered a stroke—his third serious illness in 26 months—America reeled.

In 20 minutes, share values, to a total of $4,000,000,000, were wiped out, and people thought that the Sputniks, a sick President, and slump had combined to bring disaster to the United States.

Today these volatile, erratic, and mercurial people are more cheerful.

Mr. Eisenhower, in an astonishing outward recovery, fortified by "the medicine of courage," has been in public display during the past five days. He looks ruddy and vigorous and is apparently carrying on the business of being President, if only at half-throttle.

Minor boom

THE stock market has staged a minor boom, tremendous developments are promised, and the temptation is for Americans to delude themselves that everything is all right and like is good for another three years in the White House.

My forecast is that despite the President's illness, comeback it will not happen that way.

There have now been three grave warnings concerning the President's health or lack of it, and if the third is ignored then the Americans have only themselves to blame.

I expect, within the next year, to see the President step down, Vice-President Nixon step up, into the White House, John Foster Dulles to retire, and a new youthful, vigorous, even dynamic Administration replace the present one.

Mr. Dulles would not last a month if Nixon became President. Nor would Mr. Sherman Adams, "the assistant President," whom Mr. Eisenhower has relied so much and to whom he has delegated so much power.

For the next few months America and the world is going to witness a duel between Nixon and Adams, while Eisenhower, his slender margin of reserve energy diminished, prepares to retire from the job which events have proved to be too big for any one man unless he is a Roosevelt.

The President is not only head of the State, Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, chief executive with foreign affairs, but also head of a political party, in this instance, the Republicans.

And it is the ruthless Republican high command—the same people who persuaded Eisenhower to run for a second term against his will and despite his illness—who, in my opinion, will exert pressure to make him retire.

If he can show that he has the stature to lead the country and make a good President, while Eisenhower is reduced to his Gettysburg farm, then he is a certainty as Republican candidate in 1960, and has a fair chance of beating the Democrats.

So Nixon, today, is being given the grooming, the build-up, of the young statesman, the logical leader of the Republicans. And I must admit he is beginning to look the part.

He is bearing himself today like a future President; but insisting all the time that the major decisions are coming from Eisenhower. This is in excellent taste and also good politics.

No one can accuse Mr. Nixon of pushing himself forward for the job, and he has acted with mature restraint. His eyes are, of course, on the President's chair. He would not be human if they were not.

Own staff

HE has built himself an elaborate organisation and his staff now totals 15, at a cost of over $100,000 a year. In addition, Nixon has two military aides, a colonel and a major, and the facilities of the Republican National Committee, Government departments, and the Secret Service.

In contrast, his predecessors—Vice-President John Garner,

Vice-President Henry Wallace and Mr. Truman, when he was Vice-President—each had a staff of two at a cost of only $10,000 a year.

Nixon today is poised for the great step. The man who used to be called "Tricky Dicky" and "Junior" has grown up.

In the past he was a savage campaigner with his "instinct for the jugular." He exploited the Communist issue almost as ruthlessly as the late Senator Joe McCarthy.

Tireless

NOW Nixon is balanced, constructive, a tireless campaigner who has retained the support of the conservative wing of the Republican Party, and also contrived to win the middle-of-the-road group, and even some of the Liberal element.

His ambition is without bound, and his career in the past few years has been dazzling.

Less than two decades ago Nixon was replying to a classified advertisement which said: "How to speak well and influence people. Fee, five dollars." He has learned to speak well and influence people. Today he is influencing 170,000,000 Americans.

Nixon has never been very close to Eisenhower, though the President respects Nixon's skill and diligence. Much closer are Eisenhower and his personal appointee, Adams, the ex-Governor of New Hampshire. Adams has, or had, enormous power, and the President's complete confidence.

ADAMS

He has been behind the throne ever since Ike entered the White House. "Clear it with Sherman," is a phrase constantly on Eisenhower's lips.

But not so much these past few days. That is the great difference between the past week and the weeks following Eisenhower's two previous illnesses.

Nixon is whitening down Adams, the dour Yankee who has been Eisenhower's chief of staff ever since he entered politics.

Nixon is winning and Adams is giving ground.

What sort of President would Richard Nixon make?

A decisive one, a man who would give relentless attention to every task. A chief executive who would be largely his own Secretary of State, and who would figure every angle, calculate every advantage, and plan shrewdly and well.

Nixon lacks Eisenhower's charm, and he hasn't been endowed with the supreme integrity that is Eisenhower's greatest gift. But Nixon would be on the job, and would be competent at the job.

From the British point of view there could certainly be worse men in the White House.

THE ASTONISHING CASE OF OLD PARR
AND HIS LEGEND

NOTHING more British, you might say, than beer. More even than roast beef it has been a rather more than mythical foundation of our history. Time embellishes legend . . . and many are the legends with the background of the ale house.

Take Old Parr, as rumbustious a legend as ever you could find. Parr, goes the story, lived to be 152 years old.

The irony was that it sawdust and counter establishment was his curiosity-value that killed him. So impressed with the old man's longevity was Charles I that Parr was presented at Court. Afterwards he was winned and dined so lavishly that in a matter of days he was dead.

Dead—but the legend lived on—and grew.

The death was crowned by burial in Westminster Abbey—and the historians took note of his notable experiences: living through the reigns of 10 princes, marrying his first wife when he was eighty, his second when he was 122.

DIRECTOR OF THE NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF AGRICULTURAL ENGINEERS

BRITAIN has about the most highly mechanised farming community in the world. The main objects of mechanisation are to increase the productivity per worker and to remove drudgery.

Since 1939 direct competition with industry for labour has been a very important factor in speeding up mechanisation, and that time marks a turning point in British agriculture.

The tractor has replaced the horse in the same way as the horse displaced hand work.

A man controlling a team of four horses can raise his capacity by about 40 times. With a modern farm tractor he can increase his capacity to about 200 times that of hand work.

So the farm tractor has become the keystone of farm mechanisation.

Farm horses reached their peak in Britain by 1910, but even then their services were supplemented by steam cable engines, hauling large-scale ploughs and cultivators across the land; for many years this steam tackle was a feature of the British countryside, and much of the heavy fallow land was cultivated in this way.

OUR OWN

THE first tractor using an internal combustion engine appeared in the U.S.A. in 1899; by 1918 there were many different models available in Britain, many of them designed in the same country.

These early tractors were merely power units taking the place of a team of horses for hauling horse equipment.

Because of difficulties with adhesion they could not perform under many conditions, and the only advantage they possessed over horses was their ability to work for longer hours when required.

Gradually the difficulties were overcome. But it was not until 1933 that the tractor was taken seriously, and a factory was set up in Britain to manufacture about 3,000 of them a year.

Then progress was rapid. The tractor began to be regarded as a method of applying power to the land rather than as a substitute for a team of horses; its versatility was increased by the design of special equipment and at first this meant wider implements to utilise the greater power available.

However, equipment imposed difficulties in lifting the machines at the headland and neither hand lifts nor mechanical lifts operated by the land wheels of the implement were satisfactory.

The solution turned up in the form of hydraulic control operated by an oil pump incorporated in the tractor design.

It was the tractor pneumatic tyre introduced from the U.S.A. in the mid-thirties which had the greatest effect on increasing

EXPORTS

THE higher speeds obtainable revolutionised the design of implements and greatly improved farm transport.

In more recent years there has been a distinct trend towards reducing the number of models; a modern general purpose wheel tractor is now constructed in a way which enables it to haul equipment and have attachments mounted in the rear, in front of the front axle, and under the tractor.

There are now well over 400,000 tractors on farms in Britain, compared with 55,000 in 1939.

Practically all of these are made in Britain and their design compares with the best from any other country; in fact British tractors are exported to practically every corner of the world.

FILES WRITES TO THE EDITOR—

BLESS you, Mr. We were wholly fascinated when we read the boy Donald Edgar's article "The Vital Revolution" on farming yesterday. Although most of the time he was talking through the top of his hat we certainly appreciated the bit at the end where he says:—

"The traditional pleasures—the beauty, the peace, the calm, the inner satisfaction, the quiet talk and the warmth and pleasure of the inn—remain."

Skipping the "peace and calm" we thought the "traditional pleasures" and the rest were worthy of some little drawings.

Do you send Mr. Edgar down to my farm and we'll show him 'ow 'tis really done.

Kind in your eye, Mr. Edgar.

Yours faithfully, etc.

EX-HEAVYWEIGHT RULER GETS BOXING'S HIGHEST AWARD FOR 1957

New York, Dec. 11. Carmen Basilio and Jack Dempsey have been unanimously voted boxing's highest awards for 1957. The Boxing Writers Association announced today that Middleweight Champion Basilio is "Fighter of the Year" for an unprecedented second time, and that ex-heavyweight ruler Dempsey gets the award for "long and meritorious service" to the sport.

Their plaques will be presented at the Writers' annual dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, on January 14. The Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque for the person who has contributed most to boxing during the year, but which has been come the "Fighter of the Year" award, was voted to 30-year-old Basilio at yesterday's annual meeting of the writers. He had also won that honour in 1955. Heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson won it in 1956. Dempsey, now 62, won the Neil Plaque in 1938 for his contribution to the sport's welfare that year, and when he was voted the James J. Walker Award yesterday for long and meritorious service, he was the second ever to win both trophies. Only the late James J. Walker himself, had won the two plaques, which were named for him in 1940. Walker, former Mayor of New York, was father of the State's modern boxing law and an en-

Elimination Bout For Vacant World Welter Crown

Philadelphia, Dec. 11. American welterweights Gil Turner and Vince Martinez will meet here on January 15 in the second elimination bout for the world crown, which was vacated by the new World Middleweight Champion, Carmen Basilio, it was announced today.

The bout is scheduled for 12 rounds. In the first elimination bout, Cubby Isaac Leguiz outpointed Mexico's Gaspar Ortega. Other boxers in the elimination tournament are: George Burley and Virgil Atkins of the United States.—France-Press.

Czechs Beat Haringay Racers At Ice Hockey

London, Dec. 11. The Czechoslovak ice hockey team beat Haringay Racers 5-3 in the opening match of their British tour here tonight. Eeried scores (Czechoslovak figures first) 5-2, 0-1, 3-0. Racers were worn down by the Czechs' incessant attack and were a completely exhausted team at the end.—China Mail Special.

Bryan Douglas Looks A Certainty For Those World Cup Games

Says STANLEY MATTHEWS

It is almost a pleasure to hand over the right wing job in the England team to a player like young BRYAN DOUGLAS, the little star from Blackburn looks a certainty for those World Cup games in Sweden, and you can throw in other tours as well.

His superlative display against France at Wembley was stamped with the hallmark of football greatness.

He had the confidence of the skilled craftsman, even the awe-inspiring atmosphere of Wembley failed to daunt the cheeky, adventurous spirit of the 23-year-old Blackburn boy. As I watched him bamboozle the French defence my mind rolled back over the years that played for England. I hope Bryan gets the same thrill that I did.

There's a curious similarity in our backgrounds. We both began our international careers against Wales at Cardiff, and neither of us started in football as wingers. I was a centre half and Bryan an inside left.

His Chance

He was a youngster on the Blackburn staff—a promising youngster waiting for his big chance. It came when manager Johnny Carey, searching round for the man to save a right wing position, pushed young Bryan into the first team way back in 1955.

The move was an unqualified success. Bryan scored two goals, and the way was clear for a rocket-shot to the top. Now he is there to stay. I hope he has the luck and freedom from injury that I had so that he can enjoy the bright lights and go on to add his own lustre to the game.

Do you know who recommended him to Blackburn? His mother. He was only 15 and stood all of five feet three inches, but Mrs Douglas was certain he would make a good player. How right she was! But Bryan and his mother were lucky. The Blackburn manager at that time was Jackie Bestall. Two years later he said: "Of all the players on my books, I pick out young Douglas to become the greatest."

Jackie was right on the beam, although it took nearly four years for the prophecy to work out.

The Hunch

Johnny Carey's hunch did the rest, aided by that terrible optimism and will to learn that has been the keynote of Bryan's career.

He has never looked for greatness. All he ever wanted was a place in his own town team. Now he has the glory of wearing an England shirt, the honour for which every footballer reaches out.

His critics say—as they have said of me—that he fiddles too much. Tactician? No, he is the player who can hold the ball, take it tight up to his opponent, and then beat him by the flick of the body.

Good luck to you, Bryan. Go your own way, develop your own cheeky style. As you gain experience, so you will gain stature. Your soccer life is before you—take it with both feet!

Bestall—and size didn't mean a thing to him. He was a little fellow himself. So Bryan was signed up.

Glasgow Rangers Beaten 2-0 In European Cup

Milan, Dec. 11. Milan beat Glasgow Rangers 2-0 here tonight to pass into the quarter-finals of the European Soccer Cup competition with an aggregate of 6-1.

Players slid and skidded on a pitch which had been soaked by hours of rain. The Spanish referee and his linesmen inspected it both before the game and during the interval, but allowed the match to go on after consultation with the team managers. Only about 5,000 spectators braved the conditions.

The Italians, who won the first leg in Glasgow 4-1 last month, will next meet the winners of the match between CCA, Bucharest and Borussia Dortmund.

Left-winger Baruffi opened the scoring for Milan one minute before half time and Swedish inside-right Liedholm added the second four minutes after the resumption.—Reuter.

FRIENDLY SOCCER

Real Madrid Share Honours With Wolves

Madrid, Dec. 11. Wolverhampton Wanderers and Real Madrid drew 2-2 in a friendly football match here tonight.

The Wolves, English First Division leaders, led 1-0 at half-time, but the Spanish club fought back to maintain their record of being unbeaten at home against foreign clubs in the last five years.

When the teams met at Wolverhampton in October, Wolves won 3-2.—China Mail Special.

TANNY CAMPO TO MEET ITALIAN BOXER AT MILAN

Paris, Dec. 11. Filipino featherweight boxer Tanny Campo meets Italian featherweight Giordano Campari in a non-title bout at Milan on December 20, it was announced here today.

Campo was beaten on points by France's World Bantamweight Boxing Champion, Alphonse Halimi, at Merselles last Sunday.

Campari was recently beaten by Sergio Caporali for the Italian featherweight title.—France-Press.

With the departure within the next few days of yet another UK bound "trooper" the Spotlight must be used reluctantly to single out three sporting personalities who will be leaving the Colony to enjoy Christmas on the "briny". All have contributed much to their own particular sporting interests and will be missed by many.

First on the list is Major E. T. (Paddy) O'Dwyer, RAMO, of Medical Branch HQ, who has had the honour of representing the Colony, Combined Services, the Army, and his Corps at his favourite pastime, golf, and will be long remembered for his fantastic round of 67 a few weeks ago on the Old Course at Fanning, which unfortunately could not be accepted as a course record as it was not played in a competition event.

Next comes Army Hockey Secretary Major Ted Hutson, RAO, of 6 COD, who had the satisfaction of steering last year's Army "A" hockey team to the head of the table, and has this season kept them within sight of a similar feat. In addition he has played a more than steady game for that very hockey-conscious unit, 6 COD.

Last but by no means least of this trio comes Major Norman Turner, REME, from 8 Company RASC, Chairman and leading light of Army hockey umpires, and the chief organiser of that very popular also-side Hockey League run in Whitfield Barracks last summer, added to which he has been a pillar of strength as a defender in the Army "B" eleven, and his own unit team.

All will leave with the satisfaction of having done quite a lot for their branch of sport, and in wishing the trio "bon voyage" I know I echo the sentiments of their many sporting admirers.

Opposition Swamped

Deserving of the highest praise is the remarkable achievement of the 1/10 Gurka Rifles, winners of the Land Forces Cross Country Championships 1957.

To say that they won is putting it very mildly. They swamped the opposition and romped home with the whole lot of their side of the first 15 to finish, and they came in places 5, 8, and 9 to outsiders.

This must be an all-time Land Forces record. I certainly cannot recall a more sweeping victory in any race such as this where there were over 200 runners.

The course was difficult but not particularly hilly, and could not be said to favour the Gurka runners, and it had the added attraction that the field were in full sight for at least a quarter of the race.

I feel a certain amount of praise should be directed to SSI T. Brophy, APC, for creating the interest in this sport, and carefully bringing the team up to peak condition just at the right moment. Well done indeed, 1/10 Gurka Rifles, and also sister Regt. 1/6 must not be forgotten for coming in a gallant second, and I hope to see a few runners from both Regiments in the next HKAAA meeting on December 22, when a 5,000 Metres race will be contested.

In the Small Unit competition the 6 COD continued on their winning way and took first place for the third year in succession, and there are no doubt wondering if they have won the trophy outright.

Fencing Class

The art of fencing is exercising the attention of that sport's Chairman, Major T. J. Brown, RASC, and assisted by energetic Secretary Capt. H. W. Grace, RE, who is himself a leading exponent of the art, they hope to introduce this pastime to a very much wider circle.

A beginners' class under the tuition of Capt. Grace has commenced in the Gun Club School, and meets every Tuesday at 10.00 hrs., while the more advanced exponents cross swords at the same place and time on Thursdays.

For those interested on the Island or in the Territories, a phone call to the Secretary at Force HQ will bring details of plans for these classes. The purpose of these classes is to raise the standard generally, so that there may be a greater interest in the events which will be held later.

Newcomers 1 East Lancs Regt. were finalists in the BACOR competition, and are reported as having a strong team to those units wishing to learn to those to take full advantage of the facilities offered.

A contest between the Chairman of Combined Services will be held immediately after the Christmas festivities in fact on December 20, and it is hoped that the other Services will be able to produce a very brilliant show.

swordsmen to join forces with the Army to capture this award.

Boxing referees and judges are reminded that the monthly meeting will take place at the Transit Camp, Hq 42, next Saturday, December 14, commencing at 10.00 hrs. On this occasion it is hoped to present the popular "black and white" show, and after all officials have digested the lessons this type of display always offers, a discussion will follow on the points arising from this year's series of tournaments to date.

This is the season for the provision of new diaries, may I suggest that proud owners of this necessary adjunct to modern life open up and book the dates January 28, 29, and 31, for on these dates I am hoped to stage the Land Forces Individual Boxing Championships 1957/58.

To reduce the risk of boxes reaching the final and having to drop out because of a minor injury, the organisers have very wisely left a free day between the semi-final and the big night to allow minor grazes of the conflict to clear up and ensure an appearance the hard way will in fact be fresh and fighting fit.

The Team Championships will be held out during February, and the final somewhere in the region of March 11, and if this season produces scrapping of the standard of last year, a veritable feast of boxing awaits the eager fan.

Athletics

The HKAAA will be holding its Second Open Meeting next Sunday, December 22, at South China A.C. at 7.30 p.m. The meeting commences at 10.00 hrs, and if all goes as planned, will end at 13.00 hrs.

Races from 100 to 5,000 Metres with 110 and 400 Metres Hurdles are available for entry at the South China A.C. meeting commences at 10.00 hrs, and if all goes as planned, will end at 13.00 hrs.

The last meeting was poorly supported by Army athletes, but its opening stages I expect a larger attendance, and certainly the competition should be kept.

Army Soccer

In the Army Soccer Leagues the most surprising result was Annamurith Depot's defeat of previously unbeaten 5th Coy IASC by 3-1, while the "sweep" was won by 1st Coy IASC.

Office who triumphed 5-0, to complete the Island results, District Workshops ran out winners of a very close game with Island Signals, and should start rising from their lowly position in the League.

From the Mainland, Command Workshops, and 6 COD were among the goals with 5-1 and 6-0 victories over 3rd AC Troop, and Garrison HQ respectively, while 53 Coy IASC, and HKS Provost Coy both had 2-0 wins over 1st Coy IASC.

The two games in the Major Units, South results in Army victories, 3rd AC Troop, and Garrison HQ respectively, while 53 Coy IASC, and HKS Provost Coy both had 2-0 wins over 1st Coy IASC.

West Indian Cricketers Penalised For Misconduct During English Tour

Kingston, Dec. 11. A furious controversy has been stirred up here by reports that West Indies cricketers Alf Valentine, Tom Dewdney and Roy Gilchrist were penalised for alleged misconduct during the English Test tour this year.

Cricket fans have raised a clamour against the Cricket Board of Control, which meted out the fines, and have called on it to state whether Test players from islands other than Jamaica were involved.

The reports came at a time when the West Indies team is preparing to meet Pakistan in Barbados on January 2. Valentine, a spin-bowler, and Dewdney, a pace bowler, each face the loss of a £150 bonus unless they can prove they did not harm West Indies cricket by signing contracts in the Lancashire League.

Valentine allegedly signed with the Rishton Club in the Central Lancashire League and Dewdney with Darwen in the Northern Lancashire League.

A Fast Bowler
Gilchrist, a fast bowler, reportedly was involved in an incident with Weekes and, on a team manager's report, lost half of his £150 bonus.

Weekes was also believed to have been penalised, but it was not known whether the bonus cut had already been made. Hence, the public demand for full publicity on the matter by the Cricket Board.

Jamaica's representative on the Board said he would not

There Is A Race That Even Fangio Considers "Too Dangerous"

Recently I was asked to name a "Sportsman of the Year." I chose Stirling Moss. Then I was challenged by a mother who feared that her four sons might be encouraged to look on living dangerously as an ideal.

The qualities of decision and boldness are necessary in all sports, but boldness can easily become recklessness, even ruthlessness. Sport either demands great skill or exposes competitors to great risk, often both. Recently in some sports risk has overshadowed skill.

Two years ago 83 people were killed at Le Mans. This year 13 were killed in the Mille Miglia, 10 of them spectators. Death came to the Marquis of Portago through a mechanical fault—probably a burst tyre. A few days before he had summed up his driving philosophy—"Racing is a vice and, as such, extremely hard to give up. One can be at the top one second, but all it requires is a small error and one is very embarrassingly dead the next."

"Never Again"

I believe that such sportsmen are terrified by what they do, but their fear, instead of paralysing, galvanises them to fresh action, as sometimes occurs on the battlefield. At the extreme limit they slide into each corner a little faster until either they outstrip their rivals or kill themselves. They seem to derive a satisfaction from testing their breaking point to fear.

Fangio, a driver with more caution and skill than Portago, has said he will never race in the Mille Miglia again because "it is a race that really is too dangerous." He should know. He has tried it five times. But can any racing driver except Fangio afford to draw a line between safe and dangerous races and still stay in sport?

Near Chamonix last January two young French students were stranded, and about £150,000 was spent in rescue attempts, in which a helicopter crashed. At least sixteen other climbers risked their lives, and Terry, the famous mountain guide, resigned because the guides spent too long discussing the ethics of rescue instead of making the attempt. The discussion suggested that climbers have a moral obligation to avoid risky climbs.

In searching for a definition of legitimate risks in sport certain distinctions must be made. In many sports there is criminal negligence by the braggarts who undertake the dangers. They drive too fast on an unknown road in an unsuitable car; more than 3,000 people were killed on the roads last year. They swim when the warning flag is up and delight in going beyond the barriers; more than 1,000 people were drowned last year. They attempt to climb mountains equipped with a bar of chocolate and an orange. They sail tiny craft they cannot manage in impossible weather. This is folly, not sport.

Disturbing

The attitude of spectators to dangerous sport is sometimes disturbing. Do spectators watch motor-racing more to admire the skill of the driving or because of morbid anticipation of disaster? There is something disproportionate about the furore over the dog in Sputnik in sport is often ignored. Even in athletics, in which there is relatively slight risk, some spectators still look for disaster. A small boy once expressed his profound disappointment after the finish of one of my races. "Cor, he 'ain't even fainted." Was it morbid interest or merely ignorance that led a woman spectator at Melbourne to exclaim on seeing the Olympic Marathon runners stagger home: "Gee, the final of this race ought to be worth watching."

The mob daring of hooligan terry boys or gangs at war with more properly be channelled into individual sports, even dangerous ones.

What curbs are possible? For a start that all car racing on ordinary roads should be banned. Attempted suicide and dangerous driving are already criminal offences. A swimmer in forbidden water risks his own life and those of others. Should he receive any lesser penalty? Might compulsory insurance for all climbers do something to discourage the incompetent? Last week age limits were suggested for drivers of motor-cycles of different power.

Having said all this, I must confess great admiration for sportsmen who, having excluded danger where possible, nevertheless jeopardise their lives in an attempt to break a speed barrier or climb Everest. No one but a fool risks his life lightly, but thinking men, with daring, even if they do not always advance our practical knowledge of machines or nature, raise the standard of individual vigour and enterprise on which our survival depends. A man who stakes his skill against his life must include factors beyond his own self-interest.

Bachelor's Right

A bachelor without dependants presumably has the right to risk his life. But whether a man has the right to cause his family endless anxiety over possible disaster is questionable and I do not pretend to have made up my mind completely. Thoughtful courage cannot and should not be eliminated from life; I could not bear to think of a world in which we were protected from all dangers.

This is my answer to the anxious mother—her sons will be the better for facing danger and she must be prepared to see them do so.

H. King Wood Reports In Our Australian Newsletter:

KISHI'S VISIT WENT OFF EXTREMELY WELL— EVEN WITH DIGNITY

Sydney, (By Airmail).

THE visit this weekend of the Japanese Prime Minister, Mr Kishi, and his large party passed off extremely well—even with considerable dignity.

There were one or two isolated incidents which might have let the visitor know that he was not being received with open arms but there were far less than many people expected. A silent crowd watched at a Sydney hotel when the visitors arrived for a State dinner, a silence broken by one man who yelled "at him or the Burma road!" and as the State dinner finished there were notes of a bugle from somewhere near the hotel playing what some listeners said was a few bars of "The Last Post."

'Youngest rich man in the world' class. By December 21, five months after signing on with Professional Jack Kramer, Lew Hoad says he will have made £A15,500. He is quite modest about his big money, but nevertheless seems to have considerable pride in the fact that he has made it.

In three appearances last weekend at White City, he said he would get at least £45 for every match he won. This weekend out to something like £8,100 a minute for each one that he is on the courts. He is earning today far more in a week than Australia's top scientists earn in a year.

Six months ago, when he won the Wimbledon title, he was earning just under £27 a week. Close friends believe Hoad will make at least £75,000 in his time with Kramer and he expects to have nearly £95,000 of it by next October.

Fleas

A Canadian scientist left Australia one day this week with thousands of fleas as travelling companions.

He is Dr. E. G. Munroe of the Canadian Department of Agriculture who is on his way to Bangkok to attend the 9th Pacific Scientific Congress.

The fleas were among nearly one million insect specimens Dr. Munroe gathered during a four-month stay in New Guinea.

The specimens include thousands of fleas, 25,000 moths, butterflies and other insects. The smallest specimen was an insect the size of a pin's head and their biggest a 10-inch wide butterfly.

Missing £

The mystery of Australia's missing millions is intriguing bank and Treasury officials.

£398.6 million is in issue in the form of bank notes, but country banks hold only £44.0 million including savings deposits.

The other £344 million is in the hands of the public in cash. In 1959 when there was an issue of £51.5 million, the banks held £14 million. One bank official thinks there are many hundreds of thousands of pounds stashed away in huge black market fortunes made during and after the war in Sydney.

One city firm reports a steady business in small wall safes sold.

over the counter for £9, the size of two house-bills which can be put into an indoor wall and concealed with a picture frame by any handy man. One Treasury official said he would like to know how much of our money is overseas. There is a genuine pastime for bank officers on holiday in America to pick up pocket money by buying and selling pound notes particularly in California.

A Profit

"You can buy at one bank and sell at a profit down the street. In a short walk you can pick up $50."

This question was recently raised in Federal Parliament when a member suggested to the Federal Treasury that a different colour note should be issued and the old ones withdrawn within a certain period.

Sir Arthur Fadden, who always has a ready eye for making a few extra shillings by taxation, regretfully rejected the idea.

Twenty-one National Service trainees flew to Brisbane from Newcastle last week after spending a weekend's leave at their homes.

The trainees chartered a special aircraft from a national airline to fly them from Brisbane to Newcastle and return at a cost of £378.

Each trainee paid £18 for the trip.

Factory

An Australian sewing machine manufacturing firm is to build a £185,000 factory in Japan—the first factory to be built in that country by an Australian industry.

The factory will be built at Nagoya by the Pinnock Manufacturing Co. Pty Ltd to supply sewing machines to Far Eastern markets.

Managing director, Mr W. R. Wright, said the factory would complete the first world industrial chain under Australian control, giving access to all markets.

"We are already producing sewing machines in Belgium, the European market, and will soon supply New Zealand, Singapore, Malaya, and Fiji from other producing centres," he said.

The Japanese factory is expected to open by the middle of next year. Administrative staff will be brought from Australia.

THE TWENTIES, THE BALLET AND A ROMANTIC COMEDY

which opens this evening at the King's and Princess, is another of those films that take us back to that decade which is fast becoming legendary as "the twenties."

It is not a pretty story, for it contains all that ruthlessness we have learned to accept in the business of getting on. It is only when we see such a situation, surrounded with all the drama the theatre offers, plus the drama we find in everyday success and failure do we realise that man's inhumanity to man leaves the jungle bustling.

The film opens with Kim Novak, who plays Jeanne Eagels, appearing at a gaff on a show-ground. But immediately you are made aware of the girl's ambition, that is, you are aware of the intensity of her ambition, but not of her ruthless qualities.

She uses anyone and everyone to further her ends. For instance, she first makes contact with the show business in a beauty contest staged by the carnival man Jeff Chandler.

Always with her eye to the main chance, she seizes the shortcomings of another actress to steal a part in "Rain." Although she walks away with the part there exists always the atmosphere that things will catch up with such an unscrupulous person. And they do, with remarkable poetic justice.

Miss Novak takes over the role of Jeanne Eagels with remarkable ability. It is by no means easy to control a part that calls for bit by bit revelation of such ruthlessness until the audience is horror-struck to find so much evil in one slight person.

Against that is played the warm-hearted role of Sal Satori, taken over by Jeff Chandler, who gives an extremely competent performance in a role that asks him to go on caring for Jeanne Eagels, while fully aware of her ruthless qualities.

Agnes Moorehead is the drama coach who leads Eagels to fame.

To explain what I mean by difficult parts, I can best do it by saying, that as an audience, you are never in doubt about the kind of person Jeanne Eagels is. But at the same time, every other person in the cast is called on to react in the manner to suit the kind of person they portray.

As a film, it comes near greatness, and for the life of me I can't think just where or why it misses the mark that would place it among the great films of all time.

Perhaps it's the theme, for when you come to think about audience left the Covent Garden Opera House, Dr. Canner and scores of technicians went in, and began filming, working till dawn. The camera work is performed by a multi-camera crew. As a consequence, you view the ballet just as if you occupied a seat at Covent Garden.

This film was to have opened at Lee and Astor simultaneously, but although the Astor is ready,

Jeff Chandler pleads with a small-town judge to free strip-dancer Kim Novak, in a scene from "Jeanne Eagels."

It is the kind of person Kim Novak portrays as around and about everywhere. Well, that's the kind of film it is. I should say you should put it on your viewing list for one of your more serious nights.

It does not follow the film process, in that, there is no story and no single camera approach.

I have already dealt with the art of Galina Ulanova, and the "Giselle" Ballet. It has not received the necessary permission to open, so the Kowloonites will have to wait over to the Lee to see this remarkable film.

The film opens with the Tartar Dances from "The Fountain of Bakhchisarai," a wonderful dance, peculiar to the Russians, also. They have bounding vitality. They have savagery, which is enhanced by the brilliant orange and scarlet costumes.

Next comes the "Spanish Dance" from the "Swan Lake," this latter being one of the most universally popular of all Tchaikovsky's works.

There follows "Spring Water," the music by Rachmaninoff. The brilliant choreography makes this dance a lyrical piece of deeply-felt emotion which conveys the early, faltering impressions of the first few days of Spring after the icy grip of the Russian Winter. In this dance the style combines an almost acrobatic technique with the highest standard of classical ballet. At the actual performance, "Spring Water" was encored three times.

Perhaps the most spectacular performance is the "Walpurgisnacht" from "Faust" by Gounod. This is an unforgettable dance. The climax being when Stuchkova leaps into the arms of Lapour. All the dancers revel in this ballet and their enjoyment of it is delightfully conveyed.

I have already dealt with the art of Galina Ulanova, and the "Giselle" Ballet. The colours, the music of the Royal Opera House Covent Garden Orchestra, and the Bournemouth Orchestra for sequences shot at the Davis Theatre at Croydon, all make this film of remarkable contribution to the Art of the Cinema.

Almost every foot of Monaco's eight square miles of area was photographed by the location camera. Every portion of the famous gambling casino was made available to the technicians and actors of the film.

For those who like a gamble, you are taken into the precincts of the famous Winter Sporting Club where real croqueters take part in the film.

You will notice I am recommending the film for what it shows, rather than what it is. I feel that is a fair judgment.

this time in a comedy; romance of Monte Carlo.

The German-born actress first went to Hollywood at the time when most German artists were taking a one-way ticket out of Germany. But Mariene has outlasted them all. She is certainly more glamorous than she was a quarter of a century ago, but, it is my opinion, she is not the actress she promised to be when she made "The Blue Angel."

However, let that be as it may, "The Monte Carlo Story," starring Mariene Dietrich and Vittorio De Sica, which opens tomorrow at the Star and Metro, pole, was filmed entirely at Monte Carlo.

As it is in colour, you get those glorious shots which often compensate for any weakness in a film. Here you get the playground of peace, the playboys girls and gamblers in its entirety.

This romantic comedy dealing with two such types, at the Riviera, tells of a titled divorcee, Mariene Dietrich, who comes to Monte Carlo to marry a man for his money, but falls in love instead. That is true to the original. Mariene's role, "Falling in love again."

The second string to this romantic theme concerns a handsome middle-aged Italian aristocrat of irresistible charm, Vittorio De Sica, who is looking for a wealthy widow to keep him in the manner to which he is accustomed. In fact, he has gone broke gambling.

The plot has them meet up, and is cleverly worked out with two such types. Supporting them in this rather conventional plot are a group of artists some known, some unknown, such as Arthur O'Connell, Natalie Trundy, Jane Rose, Cicilia Matania, and Althea.

This is a good film for those who like doing a tour from a cinema seat. Although a number of films have used Monte Carlo and the Principality of Monaco as a background, none has done so as extensively and thoroughly as "The Monte Carlo Story."

Manila, Dec. 12. President Garcia last night received a two-hour briefing on the status, progress and problems of Japanese war damage payments to the Philippines to date.

No details were immediately known, but reports said that Minister Cesar Lanza, chief of the Philippine Reparations Mission in Tokyo, discussed with Garcia the creation of a permanent reparations mission in Japan to replace the present interim body.—Radio-Press.

Kathmandu, Dec. 11. One hundred and forty-three demonstrators, 120 of them Communists, were arrested and 20 policemen injured today in the first open clash of Kathmandu's five-day-old election.

Police used tear gas to try to disperse the demonstrators, among them Nepal's Communist Party leader Dr. Rajmaji. He and nine others were injured and arrested.—United Press.

Robat, Dec. 11. Spanish Aircraft today bombed and machine-gunned points in the north of the Ifni enclave and naval units shelled positions near the coast, reports reaching here from Guelmim, near the enclave border, said tonight.

The reports said these air and naval attacks indicated that Spanish troops were "encountering difficulties" in their withdrawal from posts in the mountains to a perimeter laid out in an arc about 12 miles from the port of Sidi Ifni.—Reuter.

Blowtorch

A giant blowtorch swept across NSW this weekend leaving behind the ruins of more than 250 homes destroyed in all parts of the State.

Thousands of head of stock were lost and lifetime possessions of numerous families destroyed, leaving the State more than £2 million poorer from bushfires.

After six years of floods and full rain Sydney is now virtually without water.

Gardens which have been carefully tended for years are slowly dying, drastic water restrictions have been imposed on all homes and with temperatures each day of a century or more further restrictions are around the corner.

Experts say the drought will cost the country millions unless rain falls shortly.

Lottery

The first State lottery for Sydney's Opera House—tickets £5 each with first prize of £100,000—is selling rapidly, and one of the early buyers was Joan Upton, the Danish architect whose design won the prize for the new Opera House.

He has written from Denmark for a ticket. £10,000 worth of tickets were sold in the first week of the lottery, but what is intriguing lottery officials is the new type customers who are queuing to spend their £5 notes.

They say that people who have never bought a lottery ticket in their lives are cashing in on this one.

The usual syndicate names of "Free Beer," "We Need It," "Needed," and so forth are giving way to "Beethoven," "Four Crochets," "High Notes," "Grand Opera" and the like, but in the words of one lottery official, "the only music most of the purchasers want to hear is that of £100,000."

A new Lew Hoad returned to Sydney this week—a publicity-conscious, business-like Hoad—a Lew Hoad who has grown up in the last 12 months, and now realises that his ability to hit a tennis ball with considerable accuracy is putting him in the

GARDENER SCRATCHED CAR

A gardener, who scratched and damaged his employer's car after he was dismissed owing to his unsatisfactory service, was bound over $100 for one year by Miss B. K. Searle at Central Magistracy this morning.

Defendant, Chan Shen-het, a 39-year-old man admitted that he was under the influence of drink at that time. He said he felt sorry for what he had done.

Inspector N. Reynolds said that on December 5 at about 7 p.m., Lo Kiu-chung parked his employer's car at Broadwood Road. When Lo cleaned the car the next morning, he found that the nearside front door was scratched. Lo informed the police.

On December 10, defendant came to see his former employer, Mrs. N. Charrington, of 15 Broadwood Road and admitted that he had scratched her car with a piece of stone. He asked for her forgiveness.

Mrs. Charrington, this morning, speaking on behalf of the defendant, asked the Court to take a lenient view of the case as the defendant surrendered to her. She further said that was his first offence and he had a wife and children to support.

FORBIDDEN

Singapore, Dec. 11. Indonesian authorities have forbidden eight Dutchmen to cross to Singapore from the island of Pulau Samboe, eight miles off the Colony's coast.

The Dutchmen work on oil installations on Indonesian Pulau Samboe, and there is a ferry service between the island and the city.—Reuter.

Father Charged With Murder

BANK RATE INQUIRY

depends on whether you are good at poker? Lord Kindersley: I take avoiding action.

Referring to the rumours that had spread, the Chairman asked if it was right that a Director of the Bank of England should be exposed in this way. Lord Kindersley, saying it was a difficult thing for him to answer, added:

"It really boils down to this—is the contribution Lord Kindersley can make to the Bank of England worth while the risk of his leaking the Bank Rate or something like that?" Asked why, when the rumours of a Bank Rate leak started, he had not told the Bank of England Governor of his companies' gill-edged transactions, Lord Kindersley said: "It had never entered my head that I was even looking compromised."—Reuter.

Pearling Rights Dispute

The Hague, Dec. 11. No application for settlement of an Australian-Japanese dispute concerning Japanese rights on pearling operations on the Australian continental shelf has ever been submitted to the court, an authoritative spokesman of the International Court of Justice said here today.

He commented on a Canberra report which said that Australia and Japan might withdraw an application. "As there has never been an application," the spokesman said, "it is obvious it cannot be withdrawn."—Reuter.

ACCUSED SUDDENLY WENT MAD SAYS PROSECUTION

A father was charged in the Criminal Sessions this morning with the murder of his five-year-old son by throwing him from the fourth floor of their tenement house in a resettlement area to the street below.

The child, suffering from multiple head injuries, was removed to Kowloon Hospital in a dying condition. Accused is Fung Fuk-yu, 30, unemployed, and he is charged with the murder of Fung Lok-ling on September 15. In a statement to the Police he was alleged to have said, "I suddenly went mad," and did not know why he threw his son down into the street.

The accused also told the Police in another statement that he was in the Mental Hospital in 1946.

Prosecution

Mr W. A. Blair-Kerr, Senior Crown Counsel, is prosecuting, assisted by Det. Insp. C. F. Harbert.

Accused is defended by Mr Victor Gittins, instructed by Mr D. B. Evans, of Messrs Johnson, Stokes and Master.

The trial is before Mr Justice A. D. Scholes and a Jury of five men and two women.

Mr Blair-Kerr told the Jury that at about 7 a.m. on September 15, the accused rose, after having had a restless night. His little boy and his wife were on the verandah.

Crown Counsel said that a young boy, Chan Kor-wo, seven years of age would be called to say that he was standing on a verandah and saw what happened. He would say that "the foolish man" threw the boy over the verandah to the street below. He would identify "the foolish man" as the accused and would further say that after the child was thrown down, "the foolish man" stood there and looked down, until the Police came and took him away.

Hospital

Mr Blair-Kerr said that the dying boy was taken to Kowloon Hospital where a post-mortem was performed.

When the accused was charged with murder, he said, "I suddenly went mad. I don't know what is the reason. I picked him up and threw him down into the street," Crown Counsel said.

Later the same day, the accused made a further statement to the Police in which he said that he was in the Mental Hospital in 1946, that his head was aching and that "both sides of my temples were confused, and my head felt it was spinning round."

Presumption

Mr Blair-Kerr told the Jury that it was no part of the Crown's duty to enter into the question of sanity or insanity when a person was charged before a criminal court. The presumption always was that he was sane until the contrary was proved. That would be a matter for the Defence, he added. Hearing is continuing.

METAL IND. PAY 10c DIVIDEND

A satisfactory year was reported in the statement of Mr G. E. Marden, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Metal Industries Corporation Ltd., at the company's annual general meeting in the board room of Whoplock, Marden and Co., Ltd. this morning.

Mr J. L. Marden presented the Chairman's statement. Net profit for the year ended March 31, 1957, was $207,771 and a dividend of 10 cents per share was approved.

The Chairman's statement was as follows:

"The year under review was a very satisfactory one for our rolling mill associates and the results are reflected in an increase of $100,000 in the dividend received from that company. There has been a fall in scrap values during recent months, which will have an effect upon the figures for the current year, although demand for scrap metal continues at a satisfactory level.

"The new mill has operated very satisfactorily since it was brought into use in July 1956. Our associates are seeking to enlarge their undertaking and are raising further capital from shareholders.

PROSPECTING

"Government plans for the development of the area in which the mill is situated have led to negotiations which may result in a move to a new and larger site.

"Certain of the local prospecting operation in which we participated are not now considered to offer sufficient values to warrant further development, whilst one prospecting associate has experienced protracted licensing difficulties with the Government. It has accordingly been felt prudent to provide fully against all advances made in connection with prospecting. For this purpose the general reserve of $100,000 has been written back to the appropriation account and a transfer made from that account of an amount sufficient to increase the provision for contingencies to $400,000, an amount which the Directors consider to be ample.

"The balance of the expenses incurred in connection with our increase of capital in 1955 has now been written off and after providing the $100,000 required to pay the recommended dividend of 10 cents per share, there remains some $80,000 to be carried forward, compared with $42,000 last year."

Mr J. L. Marden's proposal for the adoption of the annual report and accounts was seconded by Mr E. G. Smith-Wright and carried.

AUDITORS

Mr V. J. Song seconded Mr Marden's proposal regarding the dividend.

Mr J. L. Marden and Mr E. G. Smith-Wright were re-elected to the Board of Directors, on the proposal of Mr Ellis Hayim, seconded by Mr C. W. Grango.

Messrs Lowe, Bingham and Matthews were re-appointed auditors. This was proposed by Mr W. J. Lees and seconded by Mr P. O. Seales.

Present at the meeting were Mr J. L. Marden, Mr E. G. Smith-Wright, Mr V. J. Song (Directors), and shareholders representing 434,949 shares.

POLICE PARADE REHEARSAL

Over 1,000 officers of the Hongkong Police Force and Auxiliaries took part this morning in the dress rehearsal of their annual Review and March Past at the Government Stadium, Sookunpoo.

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Alexander Grantham, will take the salute at the parade on Sunday.

At the rehearsal this morning, the Governor's ADC, Assistant Superintendent J. H. Grieve, took the salute and inspected the parade.

On arrival at the Stadium, Assistant Superintendent Grieve was escorted to the saluting base by the Commissioner of Police, Mr A. C. Maxwell.

The Police Military Band and the Pipe Band, under the baton of Mr W. B. Foster, Director of Music, were in attendance.

Witness Attempted Bribery

A potential witness in an unlicensed massage establishment case was sent to prison for three months at Kowloon Court this morning for trying to bribe the Police to let him go.

He was Lam Sheung-hei, 46-year-old tailor. The Magistrate, Mr D. Cons, was told that a Police Party under Detective-Inspector Chiu Chun-man, raided the establishment at 377 Nathan Road, first floor, on December 10. A man was arrested for allegedly operating it.

Lam was one of those found in the premises. He said he went there to have a massage. He was unable to produce any identity card. Inspector Chiu told Lam that he might be required as a witness, and could not let him go without first trying to get his name and address.

OFFERED NOTES

On the way out, Lam put three $10 notes in the Inspector's hand and said, "Let me go, give me a chance." He was taken to Yau-mai Station and charged with corruption.

Inspector Chiu asked the Magistrate to take a serious view. He pointed out the prevalence of corruption.

In his own defence, Lam claimed he thought the Inspector was going to search him, so he produced the money and gave it to him. He denied trying to bribe the Police.

HONGKONG SHIP ATTACKED

A freighter, the 42-ton motor vessel World No. 1, was attacked by two unidentified ships at 2.30 a.m. today whilst en route from the Portuguese port of Macao to Hongkong.

The freighter was fired upon by its attackers, which approached from the direction of the Lap Sap Mei group of islands outside Hongkong waters. The freighter returned the fire and succeeded in sinking capture, reaching the safety of Hongkong harbour at about 6 a.m. when the master reported the incident to the Police.

There were no casualties among the crew of the World No. 1.

3 Killed In Traffic Accidents

Three people, including a six-year-old boy, were killed and two others injured in separate traffic accidents in the Colony during the past 24 hours.

Shortly after 6 this morning, two men, Chan Fu, 30 and Lee Ping-tai, 24, who lived at No. 123, G. Block and No. 297, L. Block, Shek Kip Mei Resettlement Area respectively, were fatally injured when a single-decker bus mounted the pavement in Nathan Road, near the junction of Tai Po Road and Shek Kip Mei Street and crashed against a wall which collapsed.

The two men died shortly after admission to the Kowloon Hospital. Only the driver and a conductor were on board the bus. Neither of them were injured but the front part of the vehicle was badly damaged. Six-year-old Chung Kwong-ming was run over and killed by a bus in Queen's Road East, near Tai Wong Street East, at about 6.35 pm yesterday. The boy, who lived at No. 12, Kwong Ming Street, ground floor, died instantly.

The End Of HMS Concord

London, Dec. 12. HMS Concord, the destroyer that took part in the Amethyst dash to freedom on Yangtze River, ended her active Royal Navy days last Thursday.

The ship will go into reserve and her crew will be disbanded. To commemorate the occasion, Chao Ming, the Chinese cook from Hongkong, baked a dragon-shaped cake, which he presented to relatives of the landing cook, as a token of friendship between them.—London Express Service.
